Nostalgic For the Leisurely Way Of Entering Sweepstakes

By April Vogel

When I started with Contest Newsletter in the 80's, I wasn't really serious about my hobby. I entered a few mail in sweepstakes and some local giveaways. In the 90's I was a stay at home mom for a few years and discovered Best Sweepstakes newsletter, and I got serious about my "hobby". I joined a Sweepstakes Club and spent about $100-$200 a month in postage. I had fun decorating and making my own envelopes, seeking out local sweepstakes and finding new sweeps gave me a thrill. Checking my mailbox, or hearing the FedEx truck pull up was the highlight of my day. I won a lot, including trips, cars, computers, TV's, and much more.

Then in the early millennium of 2000 I started entering sweepstakes on the Internet. The Internet was just starting to take off and if I could get a web address from a coupon insert or store promoting their product I would try and find a sweepstakes on the Internet. But for the most part I entered sweepstakes from my Best Sweepstakes newsletter and another publication. I hand wrote my 3x5's and decorated my envelopes. I could relax in front of the TV and watch my favorite shows while filling out my envelopes. Internet sweepstakeing was something I did a few times a day, and NOW I am on the computer on and off all day long... it's a full time hobby.

Caption Contest Winners

Arnold celebrates his latest win with a victory lap around the neighborhood! Graham Richards, CA

Before filling out 3x5 cards and papers every Saturday morning, Frank pumped himself up by loudly playing Springsteen's "Born In The USA", waking up his whole family. Mark Arzoumanian, IL

Jack proudly proclaimed his belief in life, liberty, and the pursuit of sweepstakes wins. Ruby Larson, NE

"Boy! Am I getting ready for 'sweeping' to be declared a new sport for the Olympics." Martie Weston, MD

Life is different, my hobby is different, and I don't win nearly what I used to as competition is fierce. It seems to take more effort than ever before to win using the Internet, with so many people unemployed and easier access to the Internet. Also, there are fewer mail in or store drops for prizes. Nearly everyone has a smart phone or notebook or laptop, and companies are marketing and giving away their prizes via Facebook, Twitter, Instagram, and Pinterest.

The FedEx truck doesn't deliver win notices, now it's an email win notice and you are required to print out your own paperwork. What if your computer is broken or you don't get that win email and have to search your spam, or you have to tag yourself so you get notified if you won a prize. It seems we have to work harder at making sure we get "our win". And we can now be notified by an UPS email if we are having a package/prize delivered, who would have thought that 10 years ago!

I am feeling nostalgic for the leisurely way of entering sweepstakes by mail. I have always liked getting Nick's Best Sweepstakes newsletter. If I have free time at a doctor's appt, when driving up north, or while watching TV, I am perusing my newsletter, filling out 3x5's and addressing my envelopes. I know many mail in sweepstakes have an online entry, but I'm hoping my odds are better entering by mail as maybe the marketing agency is drawing a winner from each method of entry. I like Nick's text to win section too as that is another way to get off the Internet. So get off the computer once in awhile and enter those sweeps the old fashioned way, by mail, you might enjoy yourself.
